

B.M. in Composition: Audition Details

Prospective composition students must audition for and be accepted for either the BA in Music, the BME degree or the Bachelor of Music in Performance or Jazz Studies for their first two years of study. Students will normally be considered for acceptance into the Bachelor of Music in Composition in the fourth semester of study at UCF. Students will be accepted based on the Professional Sequence Entrance Review. Students will be required to pass this evaluation before entering Level III Composition. This review will include:

- Approval of composition portfolio
- Completion of Composition I and II
- Completion of Performance I and II
- Completion of MUS 2360C
- Completion of MUT 2127, Music Theory and Musicianship IV
- Completion of Class Piano IV
- Overall GPA of at least 2.5, and a GPA for all music courses of at least 3.0.

This review is a pre-requisite for Composition level III. The composition portfolio must be 2 – 3 printed, professional-looking scores with performance recordings whenever possible. This portfolio should be submitted to the composition faculty before the student's completion of Composition II. The composition faculty will then review these scores and recordings for quality, ingenuity, and potential. Approval of the portfolio then allows students to enroll in Composition III and continue composition study as private instruction.
